Wonder

My wife and I are avid movie watchers, and a couple of weeks ago, we watched a movie called Wonder. The main character, August Pullman, is born with a facial irregularity and is homeschooled out of the fear of being made fun of. When August is about to enter 5th grade, his parents decide that it is best to finally enroll him in a mainstream school. Throughout the movie, we journey along with August as he struggles with being bullied, making friends, and knowing his worth.

I think August is a character that we can all relate to because he struggles to see his worth, and I believe many of us do too. For most of our life, we are bombarded by the lies of society that we aren’t “good enough,” “beautiful enough,” “smart enough,” “strong enough,” and the list goes on. The society teaches us to believe that a human being’s worth is based on his or her race, status, money, sex appeal, power, etc. Unfortunately, we can come to believe in these lies if we don’t have enough people telling us the truth; the truth that our worth comes from the reality that we are sons and daughters of God and are created in His image. Any understanding outside of this leads to disorder, suffering, and despair (I know, a little extreme, but true!).

In the process of reflecting on self-worth, a story from the Gospels came to mind. In the parable, the Pharisees try to trick Jesus by asking if the Jews should pay taxes to Caesar. If Jesus were to side with Caesar, He would anger the Jews; but, if He were to side with the Jews, Jesus would be accused of going against Caesar. Either way, Jesus was going to be condemned. So, what does Jesus end up doing? He requests to see a Roman coin and asks, “Whose image is this and whose inscription? They replied, ‘Caesar’s.’ At that He said to them, ‘Then repay to Caesar what belongs to Caesar and to God what belongs to God’” (Matthew 22:19 – 21).

I think Jesus asks us the same question when he says, “Whose image is this?” The Roman coin that Jesus asks to see is considered important and valuable because it has Caesar’s face on it. We, as human beings, are more valuable and important than any other materialistic thing because we are created in the image of God. When you look at another human being, what do you see? Do you only see what the world wants you to see? Only the fashionable clothes that they wear? Whether the person’s cute or ugly? Skinny or over-weight? Tall or short? Or do you see what God wants you to see: His image imprinted on every single human being.

This is why I think the movie, Wonder, is such a great movie: it helps us to see as God sees. I encourage you all, especially families, to watch this movie together. While watching August’s story unfold, you will likely find yourself empathizing with how he is treated as well as feeling inspired to make a difference. Let us ask God to transform our hearts and eyes so that we may be instruments of His love, joy, and peace.

In Christ,
Tim Seman

What’s New at Sacred Heart Catholic?

SHC’s first and sixth grade classes have joined a STEM partnership. September’s STEM challenge fell on Johnny Appleseed’s birthday, September 26th. The classes united to create a way for “Johnny” to cross a river so that he could continue planting seeds on the other side. Many groups succeeded in the challenge; we celebrated our hard work by sharing stories and enjoying caramel apple sucker treats.
